

Should China optimize its TBT policies for photovoltaic products?

China should optimize its TBT (Technical Barriers to Trade) policies for photovoltaic products by enhancing product quality and technical standards to ensure compliance with international standards such as those established by the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC) and the International Organization for Standardization (ISO).

What is the global PV trade based on?

The data on global PV trade used in this paper comes from the BACI-CEPII 2 Database, covering 251 global economies from 1996 to 2019. According to the division of the PV industry, the upstream is composed of crystalline silicon raw materials and the preparation of silicon rods and silicon wafers.

How can Green trade barriers help China's photovoltaic industry?

Policymakers should consider exchange rate levels, language environments, CO₂ emissions and renewable energy consumption when formulating green trade barrier standards to better support the competitiveness and export growth of Chinese photovoltaic products in the international market.

Do higher exchange rates affect photovoltaic products?

This suggests that in countries with higher exchange rates, an increased number of TBT notifications positively impacts the export trade volume of photovoltaic products. This effect may be attributed to higher exchange rates lowering import costs, thereby enhancing the market competitiveness of high-standard photovoltaic products.

Do Green trade barriers affect photovoltaic exports?

Specifically, green trade barriers have a positive impact on the export of photovoltaic products in countries with higher exchange rates and different official languages, whereas their impact is insignificant or negative in countries with lower exchange rates and the same official language.

Does trade protectionism affect China's solar PV exports?

Zhu et al. (2021) examined the impact of both internal and external forces on China's solar PV export during 2007-2016, and found that trade protectionism and some non-tariff barriers inhibit China's PV exports.
