What types of employees are paid commissions in the solar sales industry?

There are three main employee types that are paid commissions in the solar sales industry. These include: Canvassers: While not directly involved in coordinating sales or transactions, canvassers help with all of the backend work such as lead generation, customer prospecting, and scheduling appointments for sales reps.

How does a solar sales team work?

To help drive the sale of solar-powered systems, it is standard for companies in the solar energy industry to structure employee pay around commissions. Similar to many other sales-oriented industries, sales teams are composed of different supporting roles that work collaboratively to close deals.

How do solar sales reps get paid?

Commission Structure for Solar Sales Reps The majority of solar salespeople are paid on a straight commission pay structure without a base salary. Their commission structure can be a lot more complicated than canvassers and territory managers because their overall sales compensation is based on several different commission calculation methods.

How do solar companies calculate commission rates?

Therefore, some solar companies calculate their base commission rate on the average solar system size and cost to install the system. Then, they'll couple this base rate with incentive multipliers to encourage better-than-average sales. Say your average system size is 6kW, and your average installation cost per watt is $3.00.

How much Commission do you pay for a 6kW system?

Paying commission on the basis of the overall contract amount is perhaps the most straightforward example. However, there are issues with setting up your commission structure this way. In practice: Lisa is on a 5% commission and sells a 6kW system for $20,000. She pockets $1,000. Lisa is referred to a neighbor who she also sells a 6kW system to.
