Solar panels are devices that convert sunlight into electricity using photovoltaic (PV) cells made from a semi-conducting material, usually silicon. When these cells are exposed to light they release electrons which move around to create a direct electric current (DC).

Solar panels, or photovoltaic (PV) panels, turn sunlight directly into electricity. Solar panels are made up of lots of solar cells, which include silicon, phosphorus for the negative charge, and boron for the positive charge. When sunlight touches a solar cell, it energises the electrons in the silicon, leading to an electric current.
